Not a sound of warning was emitted from the depths of the earth, where about sixty men were employed in their dangerous calling. The number of victims cannot be accurately stated, the estimates ranging from fifty to seventy men. A throng of people was soon at the scene of the disaster, a distance of nearly two miles from New Castle. A glance was enough to dissipate any hope for the lives of the entombed men, said to number between fifty and seventy. It is impossible to secure the when the explosion occurred. Their eyes becoming sore they quit work in the to death for alleged treason. Murad was reported in December last to have fled mines and had just emerged from the tunnel when the explosion occurred.

> As soon as the news of the explosion reached New Castle Superintendent Blount closed the mines of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company and, taking all his miners, left for the Vulcan mine, where all are actively at work aiding in the attempts at rescue. There are two shafts in addition is through this that air can be forced into work building a division with boards and canvas through which air can be forced in there is no possibility of getting far enough in the mine to recover any of the bodies before to-morrow morning. The cause of the explosion is not yet known. The coal fields in which the Vulcan mine is located have been troubled with subterranean gas for many years. In imany places over a distance of eighty to one crevices in the rocks since the country was first known to white men and in later years more than one valuable coal mine has been destroyed by fire breaking into the workings. A little over a year ago the mines of the Vulcan Company had to be flooded never been reopened. The drift where today's accident occurred was a new one. It is thought that the disaster may have been caused by the breaking into an immense pocket of gas generated by these everlasting fires. On Feb. 8 State Coal Mine Inspector Griffith inspected the mine and pronounced it in splendid condition and the work is said to have been done at all times in the most careful manner. The management insists that the reported loss of life is not as bad as at first accounts say, but there is apparently no hope for a single survivor, according to the judgment of men who have been employed in the mine. The Vulcan has always been a fruitful source of disquiet to the Canon City Fuel Company. Despite its bad reputation the company maintains that if only an explosion occurred, that was not followed by fire, there were frequent places in the tunnels and drifts for the men to seek refuge. But the violent surface disturbance does not tolerate the belief that any one is saved from the wreck, and miners have abandoned hope. The mine was running almost to its full capacity, owing to the fuel war that has waged in the West, and was shipping at the rate of ten or fifteen cars a day. Owing to the dangerous character of the mine the miners were not allowed to enter the slope with any matches in their possession, but the rule was not enforced, for, although death was imminent for any one venturing to strike a light, some of the more ignorant miners could not be taught that their lives depended on the observance of the order, and several infractions of the rule were reported at headquarters.

It seems marvelous that out of the human beings who crushed and struggled for life in the flame-bound building last night but three fatal endings came. The dramatic incident of the day occurred about noon when, at No. 101 River street, a member of the firm of Stettheimer & Co. began calling the roll of employes to find the missing. Pale-faced women, nervous with the shock of last night, stood in rows beceeded the answers came readily, and there were looks of relief upon the faces. When were noted, and emissaries were sent out to find them, the apprehension in the meantime growing into a settled belief that they were in the building. At 5 o'clock tonight all had been located, and police and firemen are alike in their wonder as to how the great mass of humanity escaped. Scores of women and girls report very narrow escapes. Miss Mary Kelly, as she reached the window, saw another woman ahead. This woman hesitated, apparently debating whether to jump. Miss Kelly endeavored to prevent her from jumping, but she was unable to retain her grip on the dress and the woman jumped to the sidewalk. Miss Kelly then started to descend by the fire escape. She had reached the third floor when several men hauled her in through the window. Miss Kelly was painfully burned about the hands and the side of the face. Katie Kelly escaped from the fifth floor by the rear fire escape. When she reached the her cars were frozen. Her face was also badly scratched. Here there was another stairway used by the employes in Vanzandt, Jacobs & Co.'s factory, while the Stettheimer's entrance was on the south side of the building. We were able to get down this stairway and got to the street in safety, the fire not having yet spread to the north side. I did not see any girls jump, but knew that a number of them tried to get out by the fire escape There were nine girls in the office and probably one hundred were employed in stitching room adjoining. A few of the girls had gone home, but the majority of them were still at the factory

The proceedings agreed on are that the prisoners Feb. 27, where the requisition will be presented by Sheriff Archibald, of Hamilton county, who will take the prisoners to a court of competent jurisdiction, either the Common Pleas, the Circuit Court or the Superior Court. It is most likely it will be brought to the Circuit Court. After that there can be no delay except by habeas corpus. It is not likely that this will be resorted to in the present state of public feeling. Such a procedure would make a delay possible by means of appeals all the way from the Common Pleas to the Supreme Court. The prisoners will be taken to the Covington jail, one of the strongest jails in the State of Kentucky. Chief of Detectives Larry Hazen made a thorough examination of the story of the negro George H. Jackson to-day. The questions and answers were taken down by hurt beyond bruises or a severe shaking up. a stenographer. The remarkable thing about it is its perfect correspondence with the stories he has previously told. He has stood triumphantly every test of cross examination. Nothing could be more severe than his requirement made Saturday night to take the detectives and He was not informed that he would be required to do so at that time until after he had repeated his story four times and had identified Walling in the jail. Then, arriving on the ground near the spot of the mur der, he told as nearly as possible the route of the first part of his flight, taking the officers a short distance along it. Then he said: "I crossed a footbridge some where beyond here." That was the first mention that had ever been made of a footbridge. The detectives knew nothing about it. A short time brought them to a footbridge over a small stream. The theory is now that the girl was knocked in the head and killed, and that the intention was to kill the negro and leave him there with a pistol in his hand. The fact that the carriage was recognized going to the scene of the murder over the Newport bridge, and that it did not return by that bridge, though a return ticket had been purchased, is taken as an indication that the murderer's thought the negro would rush back and report the fact of the murder. They returned to Cincinnati by the suspension bridge or some other bridge. Bridge tickets found in Jackson's pecket indicate that the country over there had been explored before the murder. THE MOB NOT ON HAND. Owing to an incendiary advertisement calling for one thousand men at Court and Sycamore streets at 8:30 this morning, "ready for work," there was a well-founded apprehension that a mob was to be gathered to lynch the prisoners, Jackson and Walling, when on their way from the jail to th Police Court. Court and Sycamore is the fail location and the prisoners were to be ing. A crowd did assemble, but a heavy relay of police was found there and no concentration was permitted. Little by littaken to the police court at 8:30 this mornconcentration was permitted. Little by little news got abroad that no occasion for any sort of demonstration could arise for the simple reason that the prisoners had been quietly removed to the City Hall two hours before the time when it was supposed they would leave the jail. Notwithstanding this fact curious people kept coming to that vicinity only to find no cause

Shortly after 8 o'clock Patrol 3 drove up to the jail to get the other prisoners who had to be take to the Police Court. It was almost impossible to drive through the crowd. The people stood in the streets and on the sidewalk, and were packed so tightly that they could hardly be driven back. When the other prisoners were marched up the steps a body of policemen pushed the people back and kept them out of the way. while they got into the wagon.

There were two white men in the batc of prisoners, and some one in the crowd said: "There they are." Others who had seen the prisoners before contradicted this remark. The crowd was disappointed. Another crowd, not nearly so large as the one at the jail, stood about Central station, despite the blizzard, eager to catch a glimpse of the prisoners. They, too, were disappointed, and when it became generally known that the prisoners had been at Central station since early morning many left

The jam of the last day when the men were taken into the Police Court was reneated. The halls were crowded, and St perintendent Lillard and Chief Court Officer Whittaker, with a squad of men, cleared the halls and forced the idlers from the building. The court room was kept nearly free from people, none but those having business in the place being allowed Chief Court Officer Whittaker held a cor sultation with Judge Gregg, and the arsoon as court was opened. Whittaker, acting under instructions, notified the prosecutor that Sheriff Jule Plummer was a clumbus seeking a requisition, and that it would be necessary to continue the case once more. The prosecutor agreed to this. The first attorney was D. D. Wood-mansee, and he was on hand early. At 9:2 Court Officer Whittaker opened court an ludge Gregg took his place on the bench. behind the railing of the clerk's desk were Nippert then took his place and called "Case No. 984, Scott Jackson and Alonz Walling." In a few moments the two pris ecutor, "the attorneys for the defense and prosecution have agreed to a continuance."

"All right," said the judge. "How long do you want it continued?"

"A few days," was the reply.

"Well, I will set the case for the 27th of

"That is all," shouted Whittaker. "Take them down stairs," and the men were led below.

As soon as the men had been taken downstairs Captain Hadley ordered that they be returned to the jail at once. Patrol No. 1 was called, and when Jack Donnelly drove into the courtyard a big crowd followed, every one alert to get a glimpse of the prisoners. They were placed at different ends of the wagon, and, besides the regular crew, Night Chief Renkert, Chief Court Officer Whittaker, detectives Crim and McDermott and specials Palmer and Seaford went along. When all was ready Whittaker called out: "Go over Eighth street and fool this crowd, Jack."

Donnelly did as ordered, but the crowd followed all the way. One lad called out: "There they go now," and pointing at the two men, he said: "Now will you be good?" On arriving at the jail Lieutenants Carroll and Corbin met the wagon with a squad of men and the prisoners were walked in into the bastile and taken to their cells.

On the way over Jackson gave way to despondency and said: "I can't get a thing. I would like to have a clean shirt, but I have not got a friend on earth to give me one."

Walling laughed at the crowd and seemed to enjoy it. On Sycamore street, near the jail, a farmer was standing gaping at the patrol wagon. He had a brand-new ax on his shoulder and when Walling caught a glimpse of him he said: "That man looks as though he were from Kentucky."

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 18 .- When Governor Bradley was told this morning of the fears entertained at Cincinnati and Newport that mob violence would be attempted on Walking and Jackson, the men charged with the murder of Pearl Bryan, he at once telegraphed to Sheriff Plummer, at New-port, asking him if he needed any assistance to preserve the welfare of the prisoners in case they are brought to Kentucky. If the sheriff answers that he needs ald, it is thought that the Governor will at once order several companies of the State militia out, as he expressed himself as determine to see that the accused men had a fair and impartial trial by due process of law.

Grandehild. BROOKLYN, Feb. 18 .- Crazed with jealousy because his wife and sons had left, Franz Michael Schwab, a German laborer fifty-six years old, to-night visited the house of her married son, Bernard, and, after gaining admittance by trickery, fired four shots from a 44-caliber pistol, two of the bullets lodging in the body of his wife, Katrina, fifty-three years old, killing her instantly. The third ball struck his grandchild, nine weeks old, over the heart, and the fourth struck the son Bernard in the right eye. Schwab, after the oting, ran through the apartments in ing her, made his escape to the street by way of the fire escape from the second floor. He was overtaken by a patrolman and arrested. The police believe that he is insane. Bernard Schwab and the injured child were removed to St. Catherine's Hos-pital, where the doctors say that they will probably not recover. In Danger of Lynching. MAYSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 18.-Robert Laughlin, the Augusta prisoner, was secreted across the Ohio river last night and brought here for a preliminary hearing today before Judge Hutchins, Judge George Dorophan, of Augusta, appeared as counse or Laughlin and examination was waived Laughlin was bound over to the Bracker county grand jury without ball for arson rape and murder. He will be secreted again o-night under guard, as the officers realize that the people from Bracken county may come in force. Since it was learned that Laughlin's open knife was found under the body of his niece, May Jones, and that the murder of both Mrs. Laughlin and May Jones was more atroclous than the confession indicates, the feeling is more intense than ever and trouble is expected. A Farm Laborer's Crime. JACKSON, Ky., Feb. 18 .- Carry Holly, farm laborer, this morning shot and killed James Combs and badly wounded Nick Combs. on Old Buck creek, in Breathitt county. The two Combs were lying wait by the roadside at the time ready to kill Holly, when he passed along because he had shot Hiram Combs, a brother of James, through the shoulder on yesterday. Both men opened fire on Holly as soon as he was near enough. Holly returned the fire with a Winchester rifle. It is believed that Nick Combs will die from the wound he received, thus making it a double tragedy. Holly has not been arrested, though is said he is at his home and ready to

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Feb. ,18 .- Gold to the amount of $932,500 was withdrawn from the treasury to-day. The amount of the gold reserve to-day stands at $90,439,784. In these two statements lies the co dication of the statement made in a dispatch to the Journal last Friday that the "endless chain" was again in fatal operation, and the bonds sold to replenish the gold reserve were being paid for out of that same reserve. Ever since the bide have been opened and gold has been received the daily statement of the condition of the gold reserve has been so confused that for days the worst could only be suspected. It is not the purpose of the Journal's correspondent to state that this confusion has arisen from any worse motive than stupidity, but the truth is coming out gradually and the worst fears of the treasury are being realized. It was stated in the Journal that a daily average withdrawal of half a million was feared. The facts show that even that estimate was too conservative by far. Here are some figures furnished by the treasury and they cannot be controverted. Since Feb. 8 the amount of gold withdrawn has amounted to $8,884,450. To-day is the 18th. Two Sundays have intervened. Hence nearly nine millions have been withdrawn in eight days, or an average of more than a million a day. That further withdrawals will be made is indicated by the persistent premium of 14 and 16 per cent, for gold and one-eighth of 1 per cent, for legal tenders. It needs no rhetoric to portray the danger of this situation. New York bankers are plainly paying for their bonds with treasury gold, and it is almost a wonder that the reserve to-day stands at even ninety millions. Had all the payments been made in gold from outside sources the gold reserve (including the 352,000,000 it contained when the bids were opened) should to-day stand at between $110,000,000 and $120,000,000. It is short that amount by the $30,000,000, and every one knows that the discouraging Zimmerman incident in the New York subtreasury furnishes the entire explanation of the discrepancy. THE DEFAULTED BONDS. Secretary Carlisle has not yet made the award of the $5,000,000 or $10,000,000 defaulted bonds. The Morgan syndicate claims them. Secretary Carlisle is said to hesitate to so award them, but Mr. Morgan has a mighty lever to influence the Secretary. So far, to the credit of the Morgans, be it said, all their payments have been made in "foreign" gold-that is, gold not drawn from the treasury. If now Mr. Carlisle avails himself of a legal technicality to withhold the defaulted bonds from the Morgans it has been intimated that the syndicate will not feel itself bound to respect the treasury gold hereafter. Mr. Carlisle understands the significance of that suggestion

At the White House the prediction of another and inevitable bond issue is denied with pathetic vehemence. Coupled with the denial, however, comes the knowledge that Secretary Carlisle will visit New York shortly for a conference with the bankers. The object of that conference is plain. Under the terms of payment there remain still some 118 days for final payment. At the present rate of gold withdrawals, augmented, as they soon will be, by the payments for imports and the annual exodus of Americans to Europe, the gold reserve will melt like snow before the sun. A treasury expert said to-day that he would feel surprised if by the 1st of June there remained $75,000,000 in the gold reserve. There must be another bond issue, because of the pitiful mismanagement of the present loan. President Cleveland, closing his eyes to the blunders of the present loan, sees in its failure to restore the gold reserve only the eagerly sought vindication of the Morgan contracts of last February. He will make a new contract with the Morgans in the coming summer. An Associated Press dispatch says: Secretary Carlisle has not yet decided to whom shall be awarded the bonds upon which default of payment of the first installment was made, nor will he do so until the exact amount of the defaults has been ascertained. In his notices of acceptance tha Secretary required the deposits to be made "on or before the 15th day of February," and it is claimed on behalf of several San Francisco bidders that their notices of acceptance were not received until after office hours on the 15th, and hence they were untions. The facts as to this matter, and also as to the reliability of one or more Chicago bidders, are now being investigated. and until a conclusion has been reached no official decision in regard to the disposition of the defaulted bonds will be announced. There seems to be no reasonable doubt, however, that they will be awarded to J. P. Morgan and associates under the bianket bid of $110.6877. The gold withdrawals today were: Coin, $856,700; bars, $35,800, leaving the true amount of the gold reserve $90,439,784. It is stated, however, that estimates received of gold deposits at the several subtreasuries during the last few days would increase the reserve to about $110 ..
